PROSPECTUS

BESANCON'S ANNUAL REGISTER OF THE STATE OF MISSISSIPPI. FOR 1838.

To contain an Annual Almanac, calcuated for the meridian of Natchez; Sketches of the early History of the State; the State Constitution; the names of county and State Officers; incorporated Banks, with their official boards, capitals, &c.; Population of the counties and county towns, with their distances from Jackson; Public Buildings, Churches, Hotels, Stores and Manufactories of the principal of county towns; Leighton, Mrs Sarah Incorporated Railroad Companies with their official boards, amount of stock, and ithe localities of their railroads, whether commenced or in contemplation, List of Colleges. Academies and Seminaries, with the date of their incorporation, annual income, names of President, Professors of Principal Colleges, and number of students or puplis: Names of the Election Presincts, Post Offices, Rivers, Creeks, Lakes, Bayons, Description of natural or artificial Curiosities: List of Churches various denomin tions, with the names of the Clergymen and the number of members belonging to each; Tables of the product of Cotton in various just received and for sale by venrs; A corrected orthography of the Indian names of counties, Towns and Rivers in the Chickusaw and Choctaw Cessions, with a mass of valuable Statistics relating to the soil, agriculture, resoucres and productions of the new counties, as well as the State at large: - To which will be added, a complete Sectional Map of the State, showing the divisions, course of steams and location of county seats in the new coun-

> The necessity of an annal volume like his, as a book of reference to every citizen engaged in business, as well as to travellers and speculators, will be apparent to all. It is needed to develope the resources of the State; to give useful information to the emigrant, and to embody, in an accessible compass, such valuable statistics, as can be obtained from no other source.

Laying aside the considerations of utility, he feeling of State pride would be a sufficient motive to sustain a publication so well calculated to show, at a view, the population, agricultural wealth and almost boundless resources of the State. The annual publiiction of the Register (the continuation of which depends upon the patronage of the first year) will give the publisher ample opportunity to keep up with the improvements of the State, and make his volumes the annual records of the advance of society in mercantile pursuits, in the arts in education, and all that embellishes life.

The publisher had been at the expense of sending an agent into every county in the State to obtain accurate statistics on which he could rely. He has also made patronage to make it an object to continue the publication in future; but, at the same time, he would scorn to ask any favor that may not be fully carned by the intrinsic merit and value of the Register.

He commends his enterprise to all classes of his fellow-citizens, to Judges, County Clerks, Registers, and those State officers is this day dissolved by the death of Mr. such a compilation, and whose interest it continued for the purpose of settlement, and lication.

All matter for compilation which those who are desirous of forwarding the enterprise may furnish, should be transmitted provious to the first day of November next, The Register will be printed with new type, on fine paper in the duodecimo form, with more than two hundred pagesto be bound like the American Almanac and other annuals of the class. The price of the Register, including the sectional Map of the State, to subscribers will be FIVE DOLLARS, payable on delivery of the volume. Large discounts will be made to agents who become responsible

A limited number of advertising pages will be appended to the Register for the advantage of friends who may desire their advertisements to penetrate every part of the State. Terms of advertising, One Dollar a line.

All orders for the work, and all communications containing special information to be incoporated in the Register, may be addressed to the compiler and publisher.
